Yugoslavia Expels 27,000 Hungarians in Anxious Europe

Ambassador Davis Gives U. S. Naval Warning to Japan

CRISIS FOR RUSSIA

Soviet Fears Franco-German Treaty—Wants Help Against Japan

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia—(AP)—The Yugoslav government, it was learned Thursday, has decided to expel all 27,000 Hungarians now living in Yugoslavia.

The decision means the uprooting of the entire Hungarian element in Yugoslavia.

It was stated authoritatively that the expulsion will be gradual, but will proceed relentlessly.

Some 2,000 have already been deported, and the number is increasing daily.

About 300, who have renounced their Hungarian citizenship preparatory to becoming Yugoslavs, are stranded on the frontier. Hungary has thrown them out and Yugoslavia will not permit them to return.

U. S. Warns Japan
LONDON, Eng.—(AP)—In the first public statement of United States policy since the tri-power naval conversation began, Norman H. Davis, ambassador-at-large, said Thursday that abandonment of the Washington and London naval treaties "would lead to conditions of insecurity, international suspicion, and costly competition with no real advantage to any nation."

The statement was regarded as a warning to Japan.

Russia and France
GENEVA, Switzerland—(AP) Copyright.—Alarmed at the prospect of a close understanding between France and Germany, Soviet Russia has asked France not to conclude any special political accord with another nation pending the fact of the projected pact of Eastern European securities.

Russia was described by League of Nations sources as fearing isolation for herself would result from any Franco-German political accord.

It is understood that France has agreed not to make any special bilateral political treaties without consulting Russia.

AUSTIN.—The Daily Texan, University of Texas campus newspaper, Thursday editorially criticized the university's athletic council for refusing to award a football letter to Jim Tolbert, 200-pound tackle from Farmerville.

Tolbert took a futile swing at Jack Mahan, officiating at the Texas-TCU game, at the end of the contest in Fort Worth. The athletic council penalized him by refusing to award his letter.

Final Arguments.
Final arguments by government and defense lawyers were made Wednesday morning. DuVal L. Perkins, one of Woodford's two lawyers, analyzed the three counts of the indictment on which Woodford was tried, and said that proof of his guilt had not been given by the government. He repeated a former statement that Woodford paid no claims as property and disbursement officer unless they had been approved by the adjutant general.

Mr. Isgrig, in closing the government's argument, stressed the alleged use of United States funds to pay bills incurred by Woodford and to evade payment of the state gasoline tax by officials and employees of the Military Department through purchase and resale of gasoline coupon books. He made a forceful appeal to the jury to aid in stamping out crime.

Lengthy Charge to Jury
Judge Miller's charge to the jury occupied more than an hour, and the jurors deliberated nearly four hours. At 4:55 p. m. they returned to the courtroom and Gus Bush, foreman, asked Judge Miller to give the correct numbers of counts, four or five, relating respectively to the Jennings Motors and Finley-Turner charges. He said that some members of the jury could not recall which count related to each charge. The verdict was returned within five minutes after the jury retired the second time.

Perkins in Statement
After the verdict was delivered, DuVal L. Perkins lawyer for Woodford and his brother-in-law, issued the following statement: "I am over-

Woodford, Guilty, Is Given 4 Year

Convicted by U.S. Jury on 2 Counts in Guard Shortage

Former Federal Disbursing Officer Also Draws $480 Fine

TRIAL LASTS WEEK

Attorney Protests, However, That Woodford Was Not U. S. Officer

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Lieutenant Colonel Edward Woodford, former United States property and disbursing officer of the Arkansas National Guard, Thursday was sentenced to four years' imprisonment and fined $480, in federal court.

Woodford was convicted on charges of mishandling government funds and was sentenced to two four-year terms, the sentences running concurrently, however.

Woodford Convicted
LITTLE ROCK.—Lieut. Col. Edward Woodford, former United States property and disbursing officer of the Arkansas National Guard, was convicted by a jury in federal court late Wednesday on two charges of mishandling government funds, and acquitted on a third.

He is liable to imprisonment up to 10 years or a fine of $480, or both.

Colonel Woodford was found guilty specifically of causing presentation of a false claim for $480 against the government by Jennings Motors of Little Rock and of withdrawing that amount from the United States Treasury to pay a personal obligation. He was acquitted of a charge of causing the Finley-Turner Tire and Service company to make a false claim against the government of $228.88.

Trial Lasts Over Week
Trial of Colonel Woodford began Monday, November 26 on an indictment returned last May. Judge John E. Martinelli disqualified himself and Judge Miller was selected to hear the case. The government completed its testimony Saturday noon, but presented additional evidence Monday. A hearing on Woodford's motion for a directed verdict was held Saturday afternoon.

The indictment originally contained eight counts, but two were dismissed by Judge Andrew Miller, of Fargo, N. D. Monday and two were withdrawn by United States Attorney Fred A. Isgrig Tuesday. The government elected to try Woodford on the second count when Judge Miller ruled that the second and third counts were substantially the same in subject matter.

Work Claimed Not Done
The second count charged Woodford with causing Jennings Motors to present a false claim, and is one of the two on which he was convicted. A testimony on both counts centered around a voucher for $480, asking payment for rewinding magnetos on National Guard trucks, which was approved by Woodford and signed by E. F. Jennings, president of the firm. This work was not done, and the amount was applied on a note signed by Woodford, Mr. Jennings testified.

Perkins, one of Woodford's two lawyers, analyzed the three counts of the indictment on which Woodford was tried, and said that proof of his guilt had not been given by the government. ### Remington Sought to Evade Embargo

Evidence Regarding 1933 Evasion Taken to Munition Probers

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Evidence that officials of the Remington Arms company had attempted to "kill" the arms embargo legislation in 1933 and "got busy at Washington" when rumors were received that the embargo was to be proclaimed, was presented Thursday to the senate munitions committee.

Earlier the committee had received information that the duPont company sent a shipment to Holland in 1929 for reshipment to China while an embargo was in effect on direct shipments to China.

Slim Chance That Ulm Plane Afloat

20 Navy, 14 Army Planes, and 23 Ships Engaged in Pacific Search

HONOLULU, H. I.—(AP)—New hope of finding Lieut. C. T. P. Ulm and his two companions afloat on the Pacific was born here Wednesday night and the gigantic search by air and sea shifted to the southwest of Honolulu. A technical description of Ulm's plane wirelessly here from San Francisco, convinced the searchers it would float on the ocean for a considerable time.

Twenty naval planes, 14 army planes and 23 naval surface craft augmented by the Coast Guard were engaged in the hunt for Ulm and his two companions. The search was shifted to the southwest of Honolulu, on which is situated Honolulu, after a fruitless hunt to the northeast which took planes as ships as far as 400 miles from the islands. More than 30,000 gallons of gasoline were consumed by military planes engaged in the search.

Surface naval vessels backtracked the course Ulm took after the Star of Australia left Oakland, Calif., Monday and neared the islands on the first leg of a projected flight to Australia.

Naval vessels and the Coast Guard cutter Itasca were so spaced that they could not "fall to sight the plane if it was afloat," Admiral Yarnall said.

Capt. Larry Dozmer, master of the steamer Maliko, advanced the theory the Star of Australia crashed into the sea southwest of Honolulu.

Germany to Take Cotton in Barter

Will Exchange Nitrates for Between 500,000 and 800,000 Bales

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Completion of a $30,000,000 cotton barter deal with Germany apparently neared Wednesday when American officials were informed that the Hitler government had approved the transaction.

Clearance at the State and Treasury departments remained, informed sources said, to consummate the transaction expected to furnish an outlet for 500,000 bales—and perhaps 800,000—of the country's principal export product.

Officials said the exchange had been approved by the Export-Import bank, directed by George N. Peek; Oscar Johnson, manager of the AAA cotton pool, and the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

The Treasury is to give its ruling within the next few days and indications Wednesday were that it would approve the deal.

Giant New Work Program Planned by the President

Roosevelt Returns to Capital to Prepare for New Congress

FOR SHORT SESSION

Administration Confines Plans to Unemployment and Budget

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—President Roosevelt returned to the capital Thursday from Warm Springs, Ga., to continue his task of preparing a legislative program for congress.

His journey to Washington prepared to submit to the new congress a program projecting the New Deal on a permanent basis, with a new and gigantic work relief program to tide things over the unemployment period.

Aside from the proposed new work plan, the administration appears to be confining its legislation largely to unemployment insurance and budget issues.

A short session of congress is planned.

Nelson's Death Is Retold by Widow

Helen Gillis and Pals Took Dead Body to Field, Phoned Undertaker

CHICAGO.—(AP)—Mrs. Helen Gillis, widow of "Baby Face" Nelson, was taken secretly to Madison, Wis., before daylight Thursday, a division of the investigation office announced here.

She is to be arraigned as a probation violator.

Tells of Killing
CHICAGO.—(AP)—Helen Gillis was ready Wednesday night to serve a year and a day in a federal penitentiary for the part she played in the Times in a copyrighted article as re-dinger melodrama.

Mrs. Juliette Fitzsimmons, sister of Nelson, was quoted by the Daily Times as saying she had learned from Mrs. Gillis.

"Baby Face" died in the arms of his wife, the paper said, at 7:35 p. m. on November 27 in a lonely hideout.

Two federal officers had closed in on the cottage at the Lake Geneva, Wis., area earlier in the day, the Times said, and the Nelsons and the unnamed male accomplice fled in a car. On the road they encountered Cowley and Hollis. The engagement began.

"Bullets whizzed past my face so close I could feel them," Mrs. Gillis was quoted. "The federal men's fire knocked out our gas supply and we took to a field."

"Les (Nelson's true name was Lester M. Gillis) yelled at me to duck into a ditch. I did and I kept my head down in fear that it would be blown off. But I was able to see Les fire back at those who were trying to kill him."

"I saw Les jump and grasp his side. I knew it was the end. I stayed in the ditch until the firing stopped. I could see one of them go over to where the federal men lay. Then they went to the government car."

"Les took the wheel and they picked me up. Les tried to drive but he couldn't make it. I knew as we rode that he wouldn't be my pal much longer."

The party hastened to a house near Chicago, stripped Nelson and laid him on a bed. There he died.

Later, the widow and the other man placed the body in a car and drove about. They passed a cemetery in suburban Niles Center.

"I sat in the back seat, holding him."

Highway Torn Up by Gas Line Blast

Prescott-Cale Road Ripped Open by Explosion—Line Is Repaired

A wide portion of the Prescott-Cale highway, two miles southeast of Prescott, was blown up Wednesday morning when a main line of the Arkansas-Louisiana Pipeline company's gas line exploded.

A 24-foot joint of pipe was hurled into the air, ripping a cavity across the road nine feet deep and 10 feet wide.

It was estimated that dirt from the explosion was thrown 100 feet into the air. The blast and roar of escaping gas could be heard a far distance.

Dr. J. B. Hasterly of Prescott, had just driven his car over the point of explosion and was less than 100 yards away when it occurred.

The line was repaired within three hours. The explosion occurred about 7 o'clock Wednesday morning.

French Withhold Troops From Saar

Great Britain to Help With Policing—Vote Set for January 13

GENEVA, Switzerland.—(AP)—France Wednesday said she will send no troops into the Saar basin, and Great Britain promised to help police the territory during the forthcoming plebiscite if Adolf Hitler is willing.

Thus, the League of Nations Council apparently solved the problem that brought it into extra-ordinary session, the matter of keeping the peace in the little European " tinder-box " that votes January 13 on whether to rejoin Germany, join France or remain under the League.

At Berlin, a German Office representative said the German government would not object to an international police force in the Saar basin if the League Council considered it necessary.

If the German reichsfuehrer assents an international army will march into the Saar before the plebiscite to assure "fair and free" balloting. But French troops, long held ready to move into the Saar should Nazis attempt to seize it by force, will stay at home.

Through Foreign Minister Pierre Laval, France made her unexpected renunciation of the right to send troops into the Saar.

"We can not participate in an international force," Laval said, "because Germany can not participate."

"I saw Les jump and grasp his side. I knew it was the end. I stayed in the ditch until the firing stopped. I could see one of them go over to where the federal men lay. Then they went to the government car."

"Les took the wheel and they picked me up. Les tried to drive but he couldn't make it. I knew as we rode that he wouldn't be my pal much longer."

Arkansas Revenue Men Arrest Dink Cox at Prescott

Blow-Torches Brought Up When Merchant Refuses to Open Safe

FINALLY GIVES IN

Spectacular Raid in Nevada Co. Disclosed by Commissioner Wiseman

"Blow open the safe if necessary." That was the order of State Revenue Commissioner Earl E. Wiseman when he detached a force of state revenue inspectors to Prescott Tuesday afternoon.

The revenue agents were to "inspect" a safe in the general furnishing store of Dink Cox, who had refused to open the strong box which was suspected of concealing bootleg cigarettes.

The additional force of revenue men, arriving in Prescott accompanied by the "best locksmith" in Little Rock, meant to go to work on the safe in earnest.

Cox, who had defied two inspectors Tuesday morning, finally turned over the combination that unlocked the safe, although he had previously said he didn't know the combination.

Besides seizing between 30 and 40 cartons of unstamped cigarettes, the revenue men found more—the safe held a quantity of liquor.

"We meant to go into that safe if we had to use blow torches on it," Commissioner Wiseman said in a telephone conversation with The Star from Little Rock Thursday morning.

"Uncovering illegal cigarettes is a common practice with this department, but, Cox gave us additional trouble," Mr. Wiseman said.

"We didn't care anything about the liquor that was found. I think the Nevada county sheriff took possession of that."

"We're after the cigarette bootleggers who are robbing the funds that should go to operate the state schools. The charges against Cox will be evading the state cigarette tax law. His case will probably be tried in a civil court."

"Cigarette dealers who evade the law are liable for $25 for each package of cigarettes having no stamps," Mr. Wiseman continued, quoting a recent decision of the supreme court.

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Size of Body Depends On Pituitary Gland

There are certain types of people who develop, somewhat late in life or occasionally during childhood, an excessive amount of action on the part of a gland which is located in the skull. This is known as the pituitary gland.

A part of the pituitary gland delivers into the blood a substance which is associated with a stimulation to growth. When the amount of this substance is excessive, growth is speeded up and the period of growth is extended. Under such circumstances men grow very tall and large so that they are said to be giants.

The condition is called gigantism. In many instances the condition is associated with a tumor of this gland. Giants are said to be weakly and of inferior intelligence and seldom do they live beyond 40 years of age.

There are other cases in which the gland fails to deliver adequate amounts of the growth-producing substance into the blood. In such cases the person tends to be much smaller than normal.

The failure to grow affects not only the bones, but also the organs and other tissues of the body, so that these dwarfs might be quite well proportioned. Sometimes they may grow very slowly, so that as they get older they take on the appearance of premature old age.

Associated with these disorders of growth may come other changes in the body, depending on the manner in which the glandular substances are delivered by the glands. One condition is called acromegaly.

In this condition the lower jaw becomes enlarged and protrudes, eyebrows get prominent, the teeth become separated due to the fact that the jaw bones grow too long, the hands and feet get large because all of the small bones grow too much, and the spine develops a forward bending.

The nose and lips become large and the skin gets coarse. This condition usually comes on between 20 and 40 years of age, and may affect both men and women.

If it is determined that there is a tumor of the gland when these changes begin to take place, it is sometimes possible to perform an operation and stop the changes. It is also possible in some cases, by the use of the X-ray, to stop the overgrowing of the gland and thereby to save the person from the extraordinary changes that occur.

Most of the glands of the body are associated in their activities, so that when one is disordered, others may also be disordered.

For this reason, activity of the thyroid, the adrenals and the other glands should be investigated at the same time, because sometimes correction of the over-activity of the associated glands will bring about significant changes in the activities of the pituitary gland.

Crawled Into Cave to Catch Vampires—Ditmars Tells of an Eerie Job in His New Book

Raymond L. Ditmars, the energetic gentleman who rounds up and looks after all kinds of creeping and crawling things for the Bronx Zoo, is as full of good stories as a traveling salesman—not the same sort of stories, of course. Every so often he lets some of his stories bubble over into a book, and the book is usually very interesting.

His newest one is "Confessions of a Scientist," and it makes fine reading. Here you may learn how Dr. Ditmars went on a rather appalling hunt for vampire bats in the Panama jungles—he had to crawl into eerie caves where the walls were alive with horrible insects and the ceilings were resounded with thousands of bats—and how he brought one of these blood-thirsty little animals back to New York and made a detailed study of it.

He also tells of chasing rattlesnakes over rocky hills in the Berkshires, of the difficulties of getting the deadly African mamba to pose for the moving picture camera, and of the things that can happen when you go hunting for the bushmaster in Central America.

His book incidentally contains an amazing account of a new medical experiment by which venom of the cobra is used to reduce cancer. This work is still in its early stages, but enough has been done to indicate that a most promising field for research has been opened here. Dr. Ditmars gives a graphic description of it.

Published by Macmillan, the book sells for $3.50.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Child's Idea About Truth Isn't Adult's.

Few things hurt a little child so much as being accused of lying when he has told the truth.

While there should be no compromising with truth on our part, yet there are times when and then when we should be able to tell the difference between the child's idea of truth and our own. They often clash.

A simple story will illustrate what I mean. The story itself has nothing to do with truth, but it shows how they add things up wrong.

A little boy calls his father "Daddy Dick." He has an Uncle Richard, too, whom he seldom sees, but who recently visited them. He was told to call this man "Uncle Dick," of course.

A month later Bobby said, "When is Uncle Daddy coming to see me?"

"Oh, you mean Uncle Dick," "No, I didn't."

"That's what you said."

The argument went on, but the little boy was adamant. "You said so," he repeated.

Gets Things Mixed

By association of ideas he had chosen one of his father's titles to add to the "Uncle" part of it. And he was sure he was right.

Of course he is very little. But he showed real distress when his mother tried to make him out wrong.

An analysis of the simple episode explains quite clearly just how the child's mind works—and does so very often.

In a little child such a number of things have to be sorted mentally all at once. Life bursts on him suddenly after he is three, when he is on his own, so to speak, for the first time.

We expect him to adjust all the processes of thinking and selection at once.

Reasoning at Fault.

How can he develop decision, tolerance, acceptance, initiative, will, judgment, abstract truthfulness and all of a dozen other virtues without getting a few snarls in the weaving?

His reasoning cannot help being mixed.

The common fish, used as protection, has its foundation in fear. That has nothing to do with the point made here.

Real hurt and therefore harm may be the result to the little child's sense of fairness and his self-respect when he is too often accused of lying and he is "morally" certain he is right. A little green light blinks in his mind instead of red and we are right after him.

It pays to try to get at causes and reasons. Few little folk, if any, are actually and deliberately untruthful.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Adapt Culture to Dress.

The loveliest girl at the theater the other night looked as though she had just stepped out of a gainsborough. Somebody attributed her charm to her gown (pale blue tulle—off-the-shoulders—tight bodice—full skirt).

Another said her hair gave her glamor. Both were right, of course. But to glorify a bit deeper, the real reason for the way she looked was that her coiffure harmonized with her gown.

This is no reason, particularly if you are going in for portrait gowns, to wear your daytime coiffure in the evening. A plain hair dress with curls or a low bun at the back is all right on the street, but you shouldn't wear anything so simple when you have on a dress that's reminiscent of a lady in a painting.

To show the back of your neck is the first rule. Expose your ears and forehead, too. In other words, mass your hair high on the crown of your head.

A girl with long hair can make a softly curled flat arrangement on top of her head. One with bobbed locks can have ringlet ends, combed upward and pinned in place with invisible pins.

Coiffure jewels are smaller than formerly. Tiaras, huge circles and crescents have been replaced by dainty little clips and pins that are tucked demurely behind one ear, in the bun or high on the back of the Young Patrick Hopes to Be First Son to Equal Father's Puck Deeds.

NEW YORK.—There have been no chips of the old block in either boxing or hockey, which is one reason why Lynn Patrick's progress with the New York Rangers, managed by his father, Lester, will be watched with interest.

As in pugilism, not one great of the glistering game ever had a son who made good in fast company.

Lynn's case is the more unusual because he didn't even skate from the time he was 17 until he was 21. So the six foot, one inch, 135-pound center and left wing's real experience consists of one season—last winter with the Montreal Royals, an amateur army.

You had better get used to Jim Londos, for the Gorgeous Greek says that he believes that he'll be able to hold the heavyweight wrestling championship for another 10 years.

And those who understand the antiquated dodge realize that this will be no trick at all unless Londos loses his bucks office again.

Londos is one of the most remarkable attractions of all time. Groping never had one who ever approached him. The secret of his success is that he never fails to give the customers a show.

Little Goes Long Way

No gridiron outfit went farther this season with what it had than Illinois. Not a strong combination at best, against Wisconsin the Illini were worn from pitched battles with Ohio State, Army, Michigan and Northwestern.

They had slipped through each engagement by the narrowest of margins. Yet they were repelled by probably the poorest Big Ten team they met, save possibly Michigan.

Week after week, comparatively light lineups are trundled out on the greenward and played 60 minutes of football mostly on their nerve. El Sayre, the center, went the route against the Badgers handicapped by not one, but two, charity horses, which accounts for the fact that some of his passes were bad.

The Champaign club used no more than two or three substitutes until the crackup came at Madison.

Monahan Nominated

If there is any justice in this All-American business, Captain Regis Monahan, of Ohio State, should be ranked well up.

Although he stands six feet and weighs 203 pounds, Monahan does the century in football logs in 11 seconds. He is a terrific blocker and tackler. He comes out of the line on all offensive plays to lead the interference, and is a bear on the defense, breaking through and smearing plays before they start. He diagnoses the opposition's plays quickly, and has an eagle eye for recovering fumbles.

Monahan does practically all the Buckeyes' kicking after touchdowns, and has the best record in the country along this line, having converted 21 out of 23 attempts.

It was Monahan's field goal from the 25-yard line that enabled Ohio State to turn back Colgate, 10-7, one of the few kickings the Maroon and White has taken in the last four years.

Monahan entered the Columbus institution from Kiski, where he was regarded as one of the foremost preparatory school stars.

A toll of more than 100,000 lives has been taken by the Sicilian volcano, Mount Etna, since records have been kept.

In 1933, the railroads hauled 2,640,910 carloads of automotive freight, which was 13.7 per cent of all the railroad freight.

Bukhchiseral, Russia, has a "Fountain of Tears," which has shed a drop of water every minute for the last 300 years.

The slender young chauffeur touched his cap. His blue eyes met hers for an instant.

"Very well, miss."

"Lawrence, you might say—say you're sorry you are not driving me instead."

"I'm very sorry, miss."

"And, Lawrence, I don't think you should say 'miss.' It sounds so—so, well I don't like it. I've tried to teach you to say Miss Bennett or Miss Carol ever since you came. It's better form. Well, I like it better. Don't you think you'll ever learn?"

"Yes, miss, Miss Carol."

He was smiling now. Carol smiled back. "I've been wondering about your shoulders. They're awfully broad. Did you ever play football?"

"No, Miss Carol. But I've done a lot of fighting. It came natural to me, being Irish."

"I may need you to drive me out later."

"Very good, Miss Carol."

She went back in the house, passing Celeste, her maid, on the stair. Carol thought there was a half-smile on the maid's face, and her own flushed suddenly.

SHE found Mrs. Kendall dressing. Her mother said fretfully "Carol, where have you been? You leave all the worrying for me to do. Get something on. I'm going to Valeria's."

"That lets me out. I wouldn't go there on a bet to listen to you two weep together and tear Peter to bits."

"You're not very sympathetic."

"No. And I have some shopping to do."

Carol went into her own room, returning in a few moments wearing a gray fur coat, with a small beret pulled close about her short dark curls. She wore no rouge, but her lips were brilliantly carmine.

"A little too much color on your lips," Mrs. Kendall objected. Carol was no beauty, her mother was thinking, but she was smart-looking and she had charm.

The two drove to Valeria's apartment and Mrs. Kendall went in.

"Please stop the car," Carol instructed the chauffeur after they had driven on a short distance. "I'm coming up front."

"Do you think you should, miss?" Carol laughed. "Yes, I think I should. I don't like sitting back here alone. And besides there are so many things I want to ask you."

"About my shoulders, miss?"

"No, Your dictation, for one thing."

"Acquired in the best families, Miss Carol."

Carol had taken her seat beside him. The young chauffeur faced her sternly, dropping his deliberate drawl to say crossly, "You're being very foolish, you know."

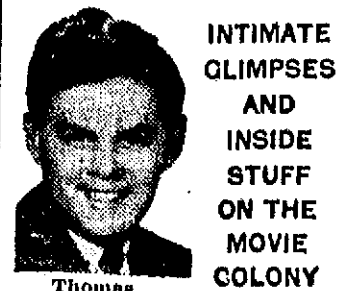

"I like being foolish," Carol said in a low tone. "Can't you see Lawrence, that you are the only one I can be natural with? You don't expect things of me. You don't care anything about the Kendall traditions. You probably don't know we have such things. But we have. And every member is supposed to live up to them."

"What things?"

"That you're rich. I'm poor. I'm an Irish chauffeur and you are—just an American girl and Lawrence. Can't you forget all those other things and remember you are—just a man?"

HOLLYWOOD GOSSIP

BY DAN THOMAS

Four Scenes Presented At Same Time!

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—Motion picture sound engineers have reached a new height in recording. A gigantic task was handed to them when they were asked simultaneously to record an orchestra, a chorus, a soloist, and a dialogue for a Viennese beer garden scene in "The Night Is Young."

For the finished picture the scene was to be shown from all angles. There would be close-ups of Evelyn Laye and Ramon Novarro sitting at a table talking and singing. Medium shots of the orchestra playing, close-ups of the soloist, and long shots of the chorus of 100 persons.

The technicians went into a huddle, through the long night hours they conferred in the office of Chief Sound Engineer Douglas Shearer. A mound of cigarette stubs became almost a mountain.

But when Director Dudley Murphy walked on the set the next morning he was greeted by a crowd of smiling men. They had solved the difficult problem.

Four microphones had been placed in strategic places about the set, each hooked up with a different recording unit. There also were four cameras to film simultaneously the important phases of the scene. All the cameras and sound units were connected to operate in perfect synchronization.

Because of the necessity of absolute timing of all elements, so that they could be heard simultaneously, it was necessary to film and record them at the same time and then combine the four sound tracks into one. The various camera angles then were intercut for the finished production.

Throughout the entire scene you now will hear everything—Navarro and Miss Laye, the soloist, the orchestra and the chorus. The predominant sound, however, will be that of which-over person or group you are seeing on the screen at the moment.

Long Sound Shots

Another new goal in sound recording will be reached during the filming of "Copy Cat," a high-speed newspaper drama which will go into production within the next week or so. One sequence will show motorbikes following racing shells on a large lake.

Of necessity the camera and microphone will be several hundred yards away from the action during some of the scenes. Yet the sound technicians claim they will be able to record the clamor perfectly, even though it will be unintelligible to the human ear.

This will be done by using a large and extremely sensitive parabolic reflector, which recently has been perfected. It is placed directly behind the microphone, focused on any desired spot, and reflects all sounds from this particular locale into the " mike."

Engineers say that, with such a reflector, ordinary sounds can be recorded at a distance of nearly a mile.

The Zest of Life

Let me but live from year to year, With forward face and unreluctant soul, Not hastening to, nor turning from the goal; Not mourning for the things that disappear In the dim past, nor holding back in fear From what the future veils; but with a whole And happy heart that pays its toll To youth and age, and travels on with cheer, So let the way wind up the hill or down, Through rough or smooth, the journey will be joy; Still seeking what I sought when but a boy, New friendship, high adventure, and a crown, I shall grow old, but never lose life's zest, Because the road's last turn will be the best.—Henry Van Dyke.

In return for the cotton, this country is to accept German goods approximating the value of the staple. Negotiations are one German product mentioned but it was explained American importers are to select the German products in the trade swap.

American packing concerns were involved in the negotiations which led the Germans to accept United States proposals, but whether a large quantity of pork products would be included in the deal was not known.

Officials said that 500,000 bales was the minimum Germany agreed to accept and the 800,000 may be exported. The Export-Import bank will handle the transfer of dollars and marks, although the trade in effect will be barter.

Dizzy Dean Signs With Cards Again

Pitching Star to Receive Above $20,000—Club Sale Is "Off"

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—(AP)—Dizzy Dean has signed "them papers."

Announcement that the senior member of the pitching firm of Dean & Dean, baseball's most colorful brother act, had agreed to terms for 1935 was made Wednesday by Sam Breadon, president of the world champion Cardinals.

Dizzy, from Bradenton, Fla., where he is wintering, got in a few words, asserting his salary for next season would be between $20,000 and $25,000, compared with $8,500 for last year.

"Boy, am I happy!" the tall, eccentric right-hander yelled over his "satisfactory" contract.

Breadon appeared equally happy. Regarding salary, Breadon had nothing whatever to say, but volunteered the information that Dizzy might do some talking.

Announcement that Dizzy had signed gave rise to rumors that negotiations for sale of the Cardinals and their minor league affiliates to Lew Wentz, Oklahoma oil multimillionaire, might be reopened. During the negotiations it was reported Wentz shied away from closing the deal until Dizzy and his brother Paul had agreed to terms.

Breadon, who returned from Florida Tuesday night after a 10-day absence, said the deal was definitely off.

"I set the price on the club and gave Mr. Wentz until last Thursday to accept it," he said. "When he did not get in touch with me I called off the deal. I intend to lay my plans for 1935."

Jean Harlow Asks for 3rd Divorce

Her Romance With Hal Rosson Is Ended After 7 1/2 Months

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—(P)—Charging many acts of cruelty, Jean Harlow, original "platinum blonde" of the movies, sued Hal Rosson, cameraman, for divorce Wednesday. They were married seven months and 17 days ago in an airplane elopement to Yuma, Ari. Rosson is Miss Harlow's third husband.

The actress asserted that Rosson would sit up and read in her room until a late hour and prevent her from obtaining sufficient sleep to enable her to do her best work at the studios.

On one occasion, she said, at a buffet dinner in their honor, Rosson made sarcastic remarks to one of the guests which greatly embarrassed Miss Harlow and other guests.

Rosson refused many times to speak to or mingle with guests in the couple's home, the actress said.

Rosson was stricken with infantile paralysis last May, shortly after he and the actress had separated. He has now recovered. It was reported that the filing of the divorce action was held up until Rosson, regarded as one of the outstanding cameramen in Hollywood, had regained his health.

U. S. to Carry on Till Business Does

Richberg Presents Government's Case to Manufacturers' Group

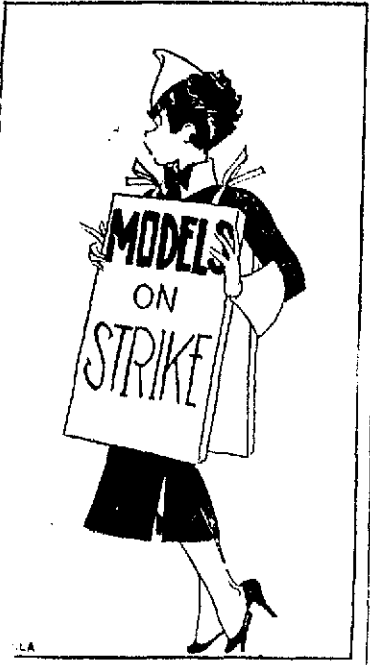

NEW YORK—(P)—The ability of private business to fight its way out of the depression alone was challenged Wednesday night by Donald Richberg, the president's recovery co-ordinator.

He attributed failure to attain all of NRA's aims to industry's lack of organization to take over the job of self-government and to opportunities missed by both business and federal officials. Richberg spoke before the Congress of American Industry sponsored by the National Association of Manufacturers.

"It is much more important," Richberg said, "for us to admit candidly to each other that our experiment with industrial self-government demonstrated all too clearly that private business is not adequately organized for collective action and self-discipline; and that political controls are a poor substitute for voluntary co-operation."

Preceding the Richberg challenge, Dr. Virgil Jordan, president of the National Industrial Conference Board, and Raymond Moley, former Roosevelt administration adviser, told the Congress it is the duty of business and industry to take over the burden of here are lots of striking models. I wouldn't think of striking.

Directing recovery.

Despite failure of NRA so far to fulfill all the hopes of its founders, nevertheless, Richberg said, "we see the foundations of a better economic system outlined in the principles which we have been seeking to make effective in the last 17 months."

Richberg left no doubt, however, that the NRA would go on. He declared, in effect, also, that the government was not going to withdraw its aid in business until private capital is more active. He said:

"The wailing of timid men that they dare not rehabilitate their plants, that they dare not expand their business or re-employ idle workers, until the safety of their operations is assured by the government, furnished only an incitement and justification of further extensions of the protecting and controlling powers of the state."

Again he asserted that the "intimate relationship of government and industry is not a theory, but a universal fact."

Richberg found two faults in the operation of NRA. He named them as the eagerness of some businessmen to use NRA for their own personal gain and the growth of "hampering restraints of rules and regulations."

"We found," he said, "that business men were theoretically opposed to government interference, but practically anxious to wield political power in the disciplining of their recalcitrant competitors."

"And we found developing, in spite of ourselves, all the hampering restraints of rules and regulations made necessary by the complexity and intricate detail of the problems which piled up on the desk of every administrative officer."

Looking toward what is to come, Richberg said:

"Now we face the future with the need of codes of fair competition and

Judge's Son Held as Crime Leader

Phil Kennamer's Murder Confession Unfolds Story of Young Gang

TULSA, Okla.—(P)—Phil Kennamer, 19-year-old son of a federal judge, was indicted Wednesday by Holly Anderson, county attorney, as the overlord of a mob of pampered youths whose activities included extortion, robbery, whiskey smuggling and finally murder.

Kennamer, the son of Judge Franklin E. Kennamer, is held in the nation's quarters of the county jail here on his reputed confession that he shot and killed John Gorrell, 28, Kansas City dental student and son of a physician.

Anderson, after six days of investigation, termed Kennamer "an embryonic Dillinger or Capone" and said he believed Kennamer killed Gorrell when the latter decided to quit Kennamer's gang.

Anderson's statement followed closely upon identification of Kennamer by Mr. and Mrs. Basil James of Wagener, near here, as the leader of a gang of five who invaded their home November 28, the night before Gorrell was slain. Anderson also attributed to the gang a series of extortions, whiskey-running and "other crimes."

The negro was "jumped" here Thursday morning, and boarded the moving train before officers were able to arrest him.

Alabama Coach Is Old "Rockne Man"

Frank Thomas Is First to Win Stellar Coaching Honors in Own Name

UNIVERSITY, Ala.—(P)—Four years ago a young man with an engaging smile and quiet manner came to the University of Alabama to assume the football coaching helm.

The man, Frank Thomas, was making his bow as head coach in big time football and he was decidedly "on the spot."

Alabama's Crimson Tide was fresh from a spectacular season crowned by a decisive victory over the West in the Rose Bowl, and was regarded as "the team to beat" in Dixie football.

Under Wallace Wade, whom Thomas succeeded, the Crimson Tide had become a feared opponent in the South and inter-sectionally, with a record of two wins and one tie in the Rose Bowl within six years.

If the size of the task confronting him caused him any worry, none could tell it. In his quiet, winning way, he took over the helm, retaining the assistants that had aided Wade.

Late this month he takes his Alabama team to Pasadena, Calif., for the Rose Bowl classic with Stanford.

During a game, Thomas sits on the bench like a statue, elbows resting on his knees, eyes glued to the field of play. Occasionally a substitute will sit beside him getting instructions, but from opening whistle until the half he rarely moves.

Thomas learned his football at Notre Dame, where he was quarter-back on the great team Knute Rockne built in 1921, 1922 and 1923.

His first coaching assignment was as an assistant at Georgia in 1923, and in 1924 he went to Chattanooga as head coach where his teams won two SIAA championships. He was the first Rockne pupil to win a title, and is the first to lead a team to the Rose Bowl.

Thomas was recalled to Georgia in 1929 when a former teammate at Notre Dame, Harry Mehre, was made head coach there.

On the resignation of Wallace Wade at Alabama in 1930, Thomas accepted.

President Returns Home to Capital

Winds Up Georgia Visit With Some Fancy Trading in Mules

WARM SPRINGS, Ga.—(P)—President Roosevelt wound up his study and play period at Warm Springs Tuesday night, beaming health and confidence.

He put his group of principal aides assembled here, to work on preparation of details of a broad new work relief program after a morning of frolicking in the swimming pool which marked the initiation of Postmaster General Farley into the "swimming cabinet."

Taking advantage of a day of sunshine—his last full day at Warm Springs—Mr. Roosevelt after a tunc with Mr. Farley and Charles Michaelson, publicity director of the Democratic National Committee, took a drive about the community.

The drive included a last trip to the Roosevelt farm which brought a final decision to hold his 40 head of beef cattle for higher prices.

Fellow-farmers noted with interest his confidence in better prices in the spring already reflected by the presidential determination to restore government salary cuts next July.

Otis Moore, manager of the Roosevelt farm, also disclosed some mule trading ability by the president, pointing to two new mules which he said Mr. Roosevelt traded for two others to a farmer near Thomasville at a "fair bargain."

Stengel and Terry Are Still "Mad"

"Loving" Picture Taken at Louisville Proves to Be Clever Fake

NEW YORK.—A Louisville photographer's snail—which may cost the Brooklyn Dodgers $50,000 in 1935 admissions—and which showed Casey Stengel and Bill Terry apparently loving conversation, was uncovered at the Brooklyn baseball offices Tuesday. A photographer sent up from the Louisville minor league meeting two weeks ago was faked but it set New York Giant and Dodger fans' tongues wagging.

The original plate was tracked down and obtained by the Brooklyn club Tuesday. It included Walter Johnson, Cleveland manager. Johnson's figure had been blocked out of the print that was widely published.

The feud between the two clubs is as bitter as ever. The Giants have refused to place the Dodgers on their Florida exhibition schedule for next spring.

"They can't take it," was Casey Stengel's comment when negotiations fell through.

"I was sitting in the Louisville hotel lobby, talking to Walter Johnson about the Larry French deal," Stengel said explaining the picture set up.

"Terry, accompanied by a cameraman came over and nudged in. I got out of my chair and sat almost in Johnson's lap to get away from the guy. The photographer snapped and then doctored the shot, leaving Johnson out of it. It was a sugar bush trick and I am sorry I fell for it. Terry left immediately after the picture was taken."

James Mulvey, vice president of the Dodgers said that Stengel was called on the carpet after the picture had appeared in New York.

Mulvey told Stengel: "The fans will think professional baseball is a hippodrome. The writers report one think and the photographers show you and Terry to be buddies. What's it all about?"

Stengel explained how either Terry or the photographer had put one over on him. Efforts were then made to dig up the original plate.

Peace Donor Firm Invited New War

Nobel, Ltd., Figures in Munitions Probe—Hoover Also Mentioned

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Charges that Nobel, Ltd., British munitions firm founded by the donor of the international peace prize, was guilty of "winking" at the rearming of Germany in violation of the Versailles treaty, were presented Wednesday to the senate munitions committee.

Hoover Mentioned WASHINGTON.—(P)—Successful concerted efforts by gun makers the world over, with active assistance of American officials, to modify the 1925 Geneva convention for the control of international arms shipments was revealed before the senate munitions committee Tuesday.

Evidence was presented that Herbert Hoover, then secretary of commerce, interested himself to the extent of assembling American arms makers to receive their views.

At about the same time, in 1925, Hoover was said to have arranged a meeting between the gun makers and a group of State Department officials and several of the delegates to the Geneva arms conference of that year.

The gun makers also had the active help of John Q. Tilson, then a representative of Connecticut and Republican leader in the House. It was testified that he helped the munitions men to meet State Department officials and wrote them that he had pleaded their case with the last Senator Burton of Ohio, chairman of the American delegation to the Geneva conference.

Tilson served as a technical advisor to the American delegation. The arms manufacturers were so appreciative of his efforts that an official of the Winchester Arms company branched the idea that he become secretary of war in case Secretary Weeks should not recover from an illness then afflicting him.

"This is just to let you know in a personal way that my own feeling is there is nothing too good for John," wrote H. F. Beebe, of the Winchester Arms company, in a letter introduced Tuesday.

An official of the du Pont company spoke appreciatively of Mr. Hoover's work. A letter of his placed in the record said that by his efforts, "the Geneva conference was prevented from adopting international agreements which would have been burdensome to American manufacturers."

Vote Questioned in East Arkansas

Contest Reveals That Candidates Employed Armed Watchers

FORREST CITY, Ark.—The two candidates for St. Francis county judge in the Democratic run-off primary last August 28 distrusted each other so thoroughly that they placed armed guards at the courthouse to watch the ballot boxes and to watch each other. They even guarded the National Bank of Eastern Arkansas the first night after the 21 ballot boxes had been removed from a vault in the courthouse basement to the bank vault.

This was brought out Tuesday in the suit of Judge Charles Fleming contesting the nomination of E. A. Rolfe. The entire second day of the resumed hearing was devoted to testimony concerning the integrity of the ballot.

Rolfe's lawyers charged that the integrity of the ballot was destroyed by removal of the boxes from the custody of the county clerk to the bank, where, they charged, the ballots were subject to tampering. Fleming's lawyers assumed the burden of proving the integrity of the ballot. If they are sustained by Circuit Judge W. D. Davonport, they will be permitted to proceed with their case.

If Judge Davonport holds the integrity of the ballot has not been destroyed, then the examining committee of six which he appointed Monday will be permitted to open the boxes and inspect the individual ballots. Otherwise Fleming will have to depend upon secondary evidence, bring individual voters into court, and require each to testify how he voted.

Kitchen Plank to Steak Your Reputation On

By MARY E. DAGUE

NEA Service Staff Writer

A woman I know was wondering out loud the other day why it is that our sex spend so much time figuring out what men like to eat. It seemed rather silly to me, wondering about that. It's fairly obvious that women cook to please their men, not themselves.

Tomorrow's Menu
Breakfast: Halves of grape fruit, cereal, cream, buckwheat pancakes, syrup, milk, coffee.
Luncheon: Cabbage surprise, baking powder biscuits, stuffed apple salad, filled cookies, milk, and tea.
Dinner: Planked sirloin steak, tomato and endive salad, canned peaches in red raspberry jelly, quick cake, milk, coffee.

Yet the funny thing is, they often miss the point. One of the best cooks among my friends is a man—and when he's giving a big dinner for men, he serves the same thing every time—a great big thick beefsteak, rich with butter and its own juices. And his are the best stag parties that ever are given in our town.

There is one precaution to keep in mind about steaks. They must be served as soon as cooked and must be done the heat can be reduced after the entire surface of the steak has been seared. Or constant turning as the steak cooks insures an even doneness throughout.

A planked steak dinner has an air about it that is worth much to the hostess. If you haven't a plank invest in one and enjoy the delicious combinations of steaks and vegetables served that way.

Planked Steak
Have the butcher cut steak one and one-half inches thick. Trim carefully. Grease broiler wires with suet and brush steak on both sides with melted butter or salad oil. Put steak in broiler and sear first on one side and then on the other. Then broil about twenty minutes, turning several times with two forks so as not to pierce meat.

Have the plank well oiled and very hot. Season steak with salt and pepper and put in center of plank. Put in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) for ten minutes, or longer if you like yours well-done. Then garnish plank with hot mashed potatoes forced through a pastry tube and a variety of other vegetables. Stuffed tomatoes, peas, string beans and fresh mushrooms is a non-starch vegetable combination. Diced beets and carrot stews combine attractively with peas and potatoes when tomatoes are not used.

If you prefer baked stuffed onions to stuffed tomatoes, use the tomatoes in a salad.

Baked Stuffed Onions
Six large onions, 1 tablespoon minced green pepper, 1 tablespoon melted butter, 4 tablespoons hot water, ½ cup buttered coarse bread crumbs, ½ pound fresh mushrooms, ½ teaspoon salt, paprika.

Parboil onions for ten minutes in enough boiling salted water to cover. Scoop out the inside of the onions, leaving several layers for a firm shell. Place, up-side-down, on a platter to drain. Chop scooped out onion very fine and mix with green pepper, bread crumbs, mushrooms which have been sautéed in melted butter and salt. Fill onions with this mixture, piling it up above the top. Place in a pan, pour around hot water and bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) until tender. It will take about forty minutes.

By Squeezing
Some night clubs are reported to be doing away with dance-floors. The space thus made vacant will be filled with a couple of extra tables, we presume.—Punch (London).

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep...Vigor...Vitality
Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.
If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nausea, backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.
If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS... a doctor's prescription... which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.
But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes, for they may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS... the old reliable that contain no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-McBarn Co.

Patmos Is Beaten Twice by Guernsey

Boys and Girls Teams Win Pair at Hope Armory Wednesday

The boys' and girls' Yellow Jackets of Guernsey, trounced the Patmos Riders from aPatmos in two close, thrilling basketball games at the Armory building in Hope Wednesday night.

In the opening contest the Guernsey girls beat their opponents by a count of 16 to 13. Haghighon and Griffin, guards, and Patrick and Melver, forwards, showed up best for the winners, Patrick making 8 points and Melver trailing with 6. For Patmos, Foster was the outstanding player, accounting for 10 of her team's 13 points.

When the second battle started, the Dunky Riders were all set for revenge to wipe out a defeat, handed them by the Guernsey lads in a practice game played on the latter's court some time ago. Then, when Abbot, stellar floor guard and Caldwell, crack forward for the Yellow Jackets did not appear on the lineup, Patmos's counters had no bounce. But the stinging Jackets showed their stingers and used them, too, for they took the lead-off play and held a lead until near the end of the first half when the south county boys forged ahead. The half ended, Patmos 12 and Guernsey 8.

Briston's team staged a comeback in the last half, taking it with a count of 13 to 8. Thus the Yellow Jackets, fighting under the handicap of playing without the valuable aid of the stingers of Caldwell and Abbot won a hard fought battle over the more powerful and veteran Patmos cagers, taking the game in the last minutes of play to a tune of 21 to 20.

Galloway of Guernsey was high point man of the game, having 15 counters to his credit. Mayton, veteran center for Patmos, accounted for 8 of his club's 20 scores.

You'll meet a million vicious germs today.

In winter, hordes of germs abound in crowded places. If your resistance is low, you become an easy prey. To protect yourself against dangerous winter ailments, your body requires plenty of vitamin A. Science says that this vitamin is the greatest enemy of "colds" and other respiratory illnesses.

Today, you have a delicious, certain means of fortifying your system with vitamin A in McKesson's VITAMIN CONCENTRATE TABLETS of Cod Liver Oil. These chocolate-coated tablets also bring you vitamin D—which supplements winter sunshine—and the body-building minerals, calcium and phosphorus.

Each tablet brings you all the vitamins in one teaspoonful of U. S. P. A. (revised 1934) Cod Liver Oil. Six small tablets daily will help protect you against colds, and increase your strength and vitality. You'll find them at your druggist's. A $1 bottle brings you 100 tablets.

Begin your campaign against colds today with McKesson's VITAMIN CONCENTRATE TABLETS.

How Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Bad Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fifth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminants, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxin.

Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package. (Adv.)
